

UCSI Helps Build the Leaders of Tomorrow

“The youth today are the leaders of tomorrow.” How many times have we heard or seen that statement being so eloquently publicized through the media? UCSI definitely believes that leadership qualities should be practiced or harbored into the lives of the young people of today.

The Student Affairs Office together with the Marketing Department of UCSI recently organized a host of leadership camps and seminars for a number of secondary schools such as S.M.K Methodist Boys School, KL (12/08/2006), S.M Convent Girls School (15/11/2006) and S.M Tengku Afzan, Kuantan(16/11/2006).

Students working on team building games

Students listening to the talks

These “One-Day” Leadership camps would normally involve team building activities such as Scavenger Hunts, IQ Puzzles, Team Obstacle Events and many more. Each activity is specially catered to help the students find and use their most suited leadership quality such as punctuality, creativity, organizational and management skills.

“These camps and seminars are important, especially for students that age, because it is at that age where they start to develop their individual characters and qualities. They are exposed to many different kinds of influences around them and it is essential that we help them focus on the right kinds of influence and possibly to be a positive influence to their peers,” said Ms. Yoshiko Tey, a Student Development Counselor in UCSI. The outcome of these camps have been very encouraging as student leave the camps with a clear sense of leadership in their lives and also a certain amount of satisfaction from the fun activities that they did during the camp. Looks like UCSI is stepping up to another level in encouraging the leaders of tomorrow to be a leader in their own lives today